National Speakers Association member Silvia Wright-Davies has been a fearless entrepreneur for 30 years and today is the very definition of the American success story.

This SkillPath trainer is known for her passion. She presents content-packed programs that are relevant, effective, and talked about. Her popular focus areas include conflict management, leadership skills for women, coaching, teambuilding, supervising, managing multiple priorities and communicating.

Silvia didn't waste any time becoming "her own boss." She launched her career by starting a fruit juice manufacturing and distribution business serving supermarkets and retail outlets. After that, she was an insurance agent for seven years.

She was also a Day-Timers Pty Ltd sales consultant and developed considerable expertise in the practice of time management. She skillfully leveraged this capability in her own consulting business. Under her direction, the business delivered training in time management in addition to project management, management skills, sales and life-balance. In 2007, she accepted a contract to head up a seminar division in the field of estate planning. She cold-called to secure bookings, researched and developed the seminars and presented them to community and business groups.

In her sessions, Silvia takes audiences to the leading edge of leadership. Her solutions are timely, cross all industries and are immediately applicable to all levels of the organization. After Silvia walks off the stage, you'll never see so many people in one room so charged up and so ready to conquer the world.
